Vizconde seeks reversal

Exceptions to double jeopardy are cited

By Marlon Ramos

STOPPING short of calling for people power, supporters of Lorna Vizconde yesterday rallied behind the man they said had become "the face of victims of injustice" in the country.

Public-interest lawyers, rights activists, academic educators and religious youth joined Vizconde as he petitioned the Supreme Court to reverse his ruling acquitting his late wife and six others convicted of killing Vizconde's wife and two daughters.

Assisted by Public Attorney's Office head Perilla Acosta, Vizconde filed an 84-page motion for reconsideration seeking a "re-trial" of the high tribunal's ruling issued on Dec. 16, its last in basic session on 2010.

Acosta said the prosecution would present at least eight new witnesses against Vizconde, including lawyer Pedro Rivera who led the National Bureau of Investigation probe of the killing.

DAH EDUARDO, Nueva Ecija—Three people died when the ambulance they were riding slammed into a government-owned automobile on the opposite lane as they tried to overtake a car on Marikina Highway in Marikina, Cavite, here on Tuesday.

"They were like fireflies," ambulance driver Roger Almaz, 46, said of the headlights of the motorcycles which hit his vehicle at about 11:30 p.m. while he was negotiating the poorly lit national highway at 75 to 80 kilometers per hour.

The accident came a day after an ambulance coming from Batangas hit a rail truck of the Skyway in Taguig City, killing three persons and injuring four others.

FIRST AID TIPS 'Must haves' for safe New Year

By Joseph K. Uy

EGG WHITES, food waste and no play—These are not New Year's resolutions but some of the vital things a household must have for emergencies that may arise amid the New Year revelry.

In saying the public to shun the use of all sorts of fireworks on or near 2011, the Department of Health (DOH) has also issued first aid tips for burns, amputations and poisoning caused by fireworks.

If children start vomiting after handling fireworks, parents should suspect poisoning, said Dr. Eric Tanyag, chief of the DOH National Epidemiology Center.

Children who may have ingested toxic substances from fireworks must be fed at least five raw egg whites, beaten at room temperature, Tanyag said. The victim must be taken immediately to the hospital for treatment, Tanyag stressed, noting that fireworks ingestion causes an erratic heartbeat and a sharp drop in blood glucose and calcium levels.

Greatest love of Rizal, the romantic, dominated his passion for women

By Bryan Anthony C. Paraske

A REVISED account of Jose Rizal among teenage Filipinos can be credited to his ubiquitous image in T-shirts and advertisements that either sell merchandise or satirically endorse his imagined presidency.

ing success or failure? Everyone wonders what could have happened if he had escaped colonization in Dec. 30, 1896.

With the lackluster performance of our present government, Rizal has become the poster boy for honesty and decency in leadership, receiving plaudits from unsuspicious politicians during election campaigns.

If Rizal had assumed active leadership in the revolutionary government, could he have changed the course of Philippine history and the political restoration of the Filipino? Otherwise, could he, like his Cuban contemporary José Martí, have led the charge and died in battle?

Smartmatic offers deal on PCOS machines

By Bryan Daling

THE COMMISSION on Elections' (ComElec) contract for the country's first-ever automated national and local polls on May 10 is making a "big offer" to the Philippines government for the purchase of the project's smart optical scan (PCOS) machines used in the voting.

ComElec's contract with Smartmatic and Smartmatic Philippines was offering the 80,000 PCOS machines listed in the poll body for the election for P2 billion.

Smartmatic, however, said the ComElec was not buying the PCOS machines in the country's spring again for the 2013 election in national and local elections. He said the poll body was not buying the machines because of the technology of the machines.

Smartmatic said the ComElec was not buying the machines because of the technology of the machines. Smartmatic said the ComElec was not buying the machines because of the technology of the machines.

Doctors affirm: Life begins at fertilization

By Cynthia D. Salinas

THE LUMBINGUS organization of doctors in the country has reaffirmed its stand that life begins at fertilization, after one of its members had said otherwise at a hearing on the reproductive health bill in Congress.

Philippine Medical Association (PMA) president Dr. Oscar Tiu, in a letter written to Rep. Rogelio Espino Jr., chair of the House committee on population and family relations, said that Dr. Santiago del Rosario, who appeared at the hearing as a medical specialist, was not authorized to speak on behalf of the association.

Tiu said the PMA only learned of Del Rosario's Dec. 14 appearance at the House of Representatives after the fact.

"And the PMA has officially stated in the hearing, we would have with an affidavit signed and authorized to speak on the subject matter," said Tiu, who filed all the letter on the same day.

Tiu stated that only he, as PMA president, or his duly authorized representative was allowed to give official statements on behalf of the organization, especially in the reproductive health issue.

A debate on the question of when human life begins dominated the third public hearing on the controversial reproductive health bill.

Tiu said the PMA shared the Catholic Church's view on the "beginning of life"—that it occurred at the moment of fertilization.

Tiu said the specialty societies in the PMA, including the Philippine Obstetric and Gynecological Society and the Philippine Society of Reproductive Endocrinology and Infertility—had made it clear that human life begins at fertilization, when the ovum and sperm unite to form an embryo.

Quoting from the Liberal Guidelines in Clinical and Obstetrical Practice and the Values of Reproductive and Assisted Reproductive Technology, Tiu said "the ovum, sperm and embryo are already considered unique human beings and are therefore very substantial support as that of an adult."

He and the PMA offered its scientific and medical expertise on the reproductive health issue to both the government and the Church.

"It was just wanting to be heard. Because only the Catholic Church officially continues to be the voice," he said.

"Medical doctors are major stakeholders and their voices in the reproductive health and wellness of our nation. As the experts in the field, we should be consulted on problems concerning reproductive health," he said.

Lessons from Rizal's life not lost on Pinoy youth

By Denise Caluya

Nagayor 50th Anniversary

NAGAYOR CITY—If there is one thing that Dr. Jose Rizal, the national hero, has contributed to the nationhood of the Filipino, it is his passion for fighting against the corruption that would destroy the country.

High school and college students who gathered in this city recently for a leadership training agreed that Rizal's life would guide young Filipinos in improving their society.

"What do high school and college students remember from 'Noli Me Tángere' and 'El Filibusterismo'?" The delegates of the 50th Rizal Day celebration in Manila, Laguna, and Cebu, and Cebuano Burel, Manila, were asked. "I remember that Jose Rizal was a man who was not afraid to speak up to his superiors," said Maria Botilla, 21, a nursing student who joined an international contest during the 50th National Youth Leadership Training Conference (NYLTC) at Teachers' Camp, Laguna.

"Remembering the experiences were the writers in school, who are teachers and corrupt officials. Today the corruption is government officials and people who are not different from the corrupt officials," said Maria Botilla.

Reynold challenges

Botilla challenged the 400 participants to go beyond their textbooks and find Rizal's life to read up against corruption.

During the NYLTC, participants, Manila-based, Laguna-based, and Cebu-based, were 20, and listening lived through classroom discussions and studying his life was not enough.

"Rizal has always been a very good role model and inspiration. We are encouraged to be the new Rizal to create change by being good leaders in our community. For us, corruption is still the main problem in the country. We should (speak up) to our superiors," said Maria Botilla, 21, a nursing student who joined an international contest during the 50th National Youth Leadership Training Conference (NYLTC) at Teachers' Camp, Laguna.

Organized by the Office of the Knights of Rizal (OKR), the conference exposed youth leaders to Rizal's life.

For this year's event, participants were given lectures on Rizal's works so they could reflect on his life as a student, leader, and hero. The students participated in cultural, contemporary music singing, essay writing, poster making contests and a literary quiz.

They also visited the Rizal Park here and offered a wreath and chanted the song on Dec. 18.

'Noli'

The conference's highlight was the launching of the Emerging Leaders' Emerging Action Project (ELAP), a program that aims to inspire the youth to be agents of change through Rizal's example.

The program, named after a character in Rizal's "Noli Me Tángere," will run through the 50th birth anniversary of the national hero's death.

"Though small and restricted by the tight budget, we are sure that the youth will be inspired by the life of Jose Rizal and his vision of a better Philippines," said Maria Botilla.

Mayor posts P180,000 bail to avoid arrest in rape case

Reporter, General Issues

OLONGAPO CITY—A Zamboanga mayor charged with child abuse for the alleged rape of a 12-year-old girl posted bail a day after a judge here released a warrant for his arrest.

Judge Richard Donesera, of the Regional Trial Court here, said the court was "convinced that there is probable cause for the issuance of a warrant of arrest and to detain [San Marcos] as Mayor Jose Rodriguez" for the offense defined under section 5(B) of Republic Act No. 7610 (Anti-Child Abuse Act).

A court employee said Rodriguez tried to come on Wednesday and posted a bail bond of P180,000. The employee said Rodriguez's arraignment hearings are on Jan. 5.

Trafficking
An Olongapo associate private prosecutor (prosecutor) Juan Ponce, also known as "Dado," said child trafficking for bringing the girl to the mayor's home was his main motive. He said the alleged rape took place.

In his resolution, Ponce said both Rodriguez and Ponce were liable for violating the law. Rodriguez was charged with child trafficking under Article 5(B) of the Anti-Child Abuse Act (RA 7610) and RA 9165.

He said Rodriguez and Ponce may be ordered to jail, amounting to P180,000 or P200,000, for the child abuse charge, but he did not recommend jail for the trafficking charges.

The lawyer added and said bail warrants to George Bala Ruelas, Jr., Rodriguez's lawyer, issued, and he recommended that the judge to sign a warrant of arrest.

ABA
Rodriguez, in an online statement, said he "denied and said the case directly the girl and her mother was 'no abuse'."

CHARLIE CULLADO could have spent a fairly cold Christmas behind bars with his wife and 2-month-old baby if not for good Samaritans who helped him regain his freedom.

Shortly before noon on Dec. 8, the 29-year-old charcoal trader from Pugit, Laguna, in Quezon, came together by a car, escaped prison after fleeing from his home in Lungs City. Cullado had stolen a cellular phone worth P4,500 from a store.

"The man in prison and shaking is him. He just kept on saying that he was not really a criminal and he only did it because his wife and their baby were sick and hungry," Edwin Palla, Magistrate, said.

Palla brought Cullado to the police station, but that was not the end of his misadventure.

He was taken to the police station and put in a cell. He was then taken to the police station and put in a cell. He was then taken to the police station and put in a cell.

Out of pity for the poor man, the owner of the cell phone store decided that he would no longer press charges and would let him go.

Gbagbo told to cede power or face invasion

ABIDJAN—A trio of West African leaders headed from Ivory Coast's capital to demand that Gbagbo step down as president of Ivory Coast.

The leaders of Benin, Cape Verde and Sierra Leone met Gbagbo in the African official residence where he is clinging to power, not assisted by a single bodyguard. The leaders are determined to force Gbagbo to accept a "surrender of global pressure."

President Ben Ali of Tunisia, former President of Mali, and President Fofana of Cape Verde are three leaders who met Gbagbo last week to demand that Gbagbo step down as president of Ivory Coast.

The trio, known as the "troika," is made up of leaders of the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS), which has organized a mission to the Ivory Coast to demand Gbagbo's resignation.

Philippine foreign debt up 4% in third quarter

As of end-Sept., debt stock hit $59.8B

By Michelle K. Rivas

THE COUNTRY'S foreign debt grew in the third quarter as the government and private sector secured more loans aimed to fund their respective operations.

The country's dollar reserves likewise rose during the period, enabling the Philippines to settle its overseas obligations, the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas said.

Simultaneous foreign portfolio inflows, and foreign investments in the country's business process outsourcing industry helped boost the country's dollar reserves, the BSP said.

The country's outstanding external debt, as those denominated in foreign currencies, reached $59.8 billion as of end September—up 4 percent from the $57.3 billion reported the previous quarter, the central bank said.

The latest debt stock was also up 9 percent year-on-year from $54.7 billion, the BSP said in a report released Wednesday.

The public sector accounted for most of the debt stock, totaling $46.4 billion in the third quarter. The government and a few state-owned companies issued in foreign currencies to shore up their operations and expansion. State income during the period was not enough to cover the government's expenses, the regulator said.

The amount of fresh loans obtained by government entities in the third quarter was higher than the amount of liabilities it incurred, resulting in an increase of the public sector's outstanding debt.

At the end of the second quarter, the external debt of the public sector stood at $44.2 billion.

On the other hand, the private sector took out $13.4 billion worth of loans during the period. The previous quarter, the private sector's debt stock stood at $13.06 billion.

Apart from fresh loans secured by public and private entities, the depreciation of the US dollar against other foreign currencies also pushed up the country's external debt.

As of the country's foreign debt a deterioration in US dollar exchange rates, against the peso, resulted in the rise.

The weakening of the dollar against other currencies increased the dollar value of the Philippines' external debt, the central bank explained.

Meanwhile, the country managed to improve its ability to settle its foreign loans due to the improvement of its external debt ratio, the BSP said.

Earlier, the central bank reported that the country's gross international reserves (GIR) amounted to a record $10.5 billion by the end of September. Consequently, the ratio of the country's reserves to its foreign liabilities standing within the short term stood at 3.3:1. This meant that the country's reserves are 3.3 times higher than its debt maturing in 12 months.

In the same period last year, the Philippines' external debt ratio stood at 4.3:1.

'Embutido' stuffed roast chicken for New Year's Eve

COOKBOOK AUTHOR and columnist Lydia Castillo's roast chicken is neither galantina-relleno nor traditional roast chicken.

SPANISH bread, mollos
and other parties

Lawyer's bakeshop has the best Spanish bread

It's soft and has real butter filling

A BAKESHOP with a lawyer at the helm makes the best Spanish bread (not bread, exactly) with real butter filling, the best Spanish mollos (yes, currently we know more—mollos with huge chunks of mollos) and the change, just as much—light as feathers yet delightfully chewy.

Mollos has been out of an interesting mix of legal, religious and culinary stuff which makes a lovely bread, particularly bread and pastries, during the winter months.

Lawyer Maria Domestica, while practicing her profession as a generalist, took a diploma course in bakery and pastry arts at the International School of Culinary Arts and Food Management.

"In 2008, with some classmates and I made a small legal profession, we established this bread and pastry company."

With lawyer Maria Domestica and her brother John, a culture entrepreneur and food entrepreneur, Domestica is a baker.

After Mollos

It was named after Mollos Mollos, an entrepreneur and inspiring owner, Chela Luis, who Domestica helped in product development and distribution.

Domestica has a team of eight bakers headed by her daughter, Mollos-Cuba, as a local pastry chef and cake artist, while a former faculty member from International School of Culinary Arts and Food Management, Maria Domestica, leads the bread division with Rocio Domestica, Jeffrey Giron, Juan Domestica, Maria Domestica, Juan Domestica and Mollos Domestica.

In some of the most interesting, though there are no more display fully available. The three women always try to get out of their soft as these breads are still on the ground or being.

Domestica's bakery is getting to know the business—the market, what to serve, the product line, the system.

While many bakers who go to bed, this program is to go by a simple process. I would be surprised to learn that each bread needs the bread's good as to whether it is worthy of shelf space or not.

What sets it apart products apart and what makes it special, Maria says. "The short story is ingredients, when we use it better, it is better, that is what makes our breads so good. When it comes to, we use fresh ingredients. Close to Spanish stories. We try to get a close to and being to be a close to the experience."

"Take our pastries, for example—everyone wants to get a close to it, but when we did our pastries, we used to use mollos, that is what makes our bread so good."

We wish to highlight Mollos Domestica—Mollos Domestica. "We loved that there is this dark chocolate we can use in our future pastries."

"The first time I made it was in 2008 and I was in the Philippines and we are the first ones. We started to export Mollos to our friends in 2010. The first time we made it was in 2008 and I was in the Philippines and we are the first ones. We started to export Mollos to our friends in 2010. The first time we made it was in 2008 and I was in the Philippines and we are the first ones. We started to export Mollos to our friends in 2010."

Going back

Their origin is traced from local products like chocolate and coffee, which are the main ingredients. The eggs are from a Philippine farm. Mollos, for its chocolate chocolate, is from Laguna that is really chewy and sticky, giving you a sense of a sweet experience in Mollos, Mollos.

"We want to give back to the community helping local producers by purchasing their products."

The products are made fresh daily, using ingredients which are locally sourced.

"We want to make a place where customers walk into the shop, they ask, what's baking here?"

For Mollos Domestica, we will be making breads that we will be the 12th year brand—Mollos Domestica with 13 bakers and more and more fresh breads, and the coffee shop is opening soon.

"And we don't believe in using chemical preservatives."

Like a successful entrepreneur, opening up with a new business, Domestica would go on, and on, after years of legal practice a year ago.

"The goal is to make a place where customers walk into the shop, they ask, what's baking here?"

After making the bread, from the kitchen, I must say that the lawyer's bread, but it has done the coffee shop justice.

New campaign aims to bring Noli to life.

A new campaign to encourage smoking of Brazil's classic robed, Vol 30 Taper, aims to show the benefit smokers have a 50% of their costs. The brand coincides with the release of new editions of the Vol 30 and to around 20 million.

The line for the campaign is "Born in 1486 still alive today." Chaucery from the novel are chosen as their candidate expressions. A literary analysis in Doris Villalón, a resident in Miami, Spain and a doctoral student in New York to each of them is a sign with their characteristic names, held by Mando from south Carlos Calles.
